COLLEGE MUSICAL COMEDY SCORES GREAT SUCCESS BEFORE BIG HOUSE

Connecticut College need never look further than Norwich as a place for the premieres of musical comedies by the college girls. Last year "Halt Ceceola" was given at Slater hall before an audience that crowded the stage and night before an even larger audience and with correspondingly larger financial returns, the original musical comedy "O Aladdin" was given with splendid success.

The financial proceeds of the evening will give about $650 to be divided equally between the social service fund of the college, Service League and scholarship fund of the Norwich College club, under whose auspices the comedy was presented here. The seat sale Friday night brought in about $750, the sale of candy about $150. The expenses were about $250, leaving $650 for the net proceeds, which is about $200 more than was made on the first night.

From the singing of the first spirited chorus, "Oh Here's To You," the big audience of 850 Friday night evinced their hearty approval of the work of the college girls and encores were showered along plentifully all through the production. The music was tuneful and melodious without being trite, and the acting was excellent and fresh.

The big song hits were found in the first act, and included, "I'm a Roaming Romeo," The Wedding Bells, "I've a Spot in My Heart For An Artist," and "O, O Aladdin, You Stole My Heart." In the last act the music rather fell off from the merit of the numbers of the other two acts, and the action of the comedy was more disconnected.

At the end of the second act, two of the girls and a boy marched to the front with big armfuls of flowers for several of the principals and the authors of the comedies of that year and last, Miss Helen Collins, Paige, '21, who wrote the music, and Miss Rachel Smith, '21, who wrote the words.

The following were the principals in the cast:

Adam Ladd (Aladdin), an artist, Julia Warner, '23, Nautaguck; Peggy Arden, '23, Nautaguck; Marie Antoinette Taylor, '23, New London; Jeanette Sperry, '23, Oak Park, Ill.; Polly, guest at party.

Evelyn Ray, Washington, D. C.; Patsy, guest at party; Martha Houston, '21, New Haven; Betty, guest at party; Laura, guest at party; Helen Collins, '20, New London; Toby, guest at party; Agnes Leahy, '21, Norwich; Dick, guest at party.

Dorothy Randle, '23, New Haven; Billy, guest at party; Dorothy Hubbard, '23, Brattleboro, Vt.; Helen Barkerding, '23, Park Ridge, N. Y.; Grace Fisher, '23, Hackensack, N. Y.; Himuc of the Hotfug Isle.

Genie of the Lamp, Grace Fisher, '23, Hackensack, N. Y.; Butler, Lydi Marvin, '22, Deep River; Ruth Macdonald, '21, Mystic; Henrietta Costigan, '20, New Rochelle.

The first act is in the studio of Adam Ladd, "Aladdin," the second act in the Hotfug Isle, and the last act returns to the studio. The plot begins, as Adam Ladd explains it, "with a woman made to order, a legend, a legend is attached with the proviso that she must marry Adam Ladd. Peggy Arden, who Ladd has never seen, arrives at the studio and takes the dare of fitting into the place of a professional dancer, the Princess Bad, who has cancelled her engagement to appear at the party.

In the second act Aladdin falls in love with Peggy Arden, and she, in turn, falls in love with him. The wonderful lamp, which enables him to fulfill every demand made by her father, the Himuc of the Isle. In the final act Aladdin finds that the unknown Peggy of the legend and the Princess Bad are one and the same person, bringing the play to a close with the wedding of the young couple.

As the leading man, Miss Warner had a good stage presence and acted with grace and dignity. Miss Leahy, who made a charming leading lady and played the part with its varied requirements in finished form, scoring pronounced success in her role. The dancing was done by the quartet, Miss Leahy, Miss Hubbard, Miss Randle and Miss Barkerding, in which Miss Leahy was prominent for the fine handling of her lines and the naturalness of her acting.

Two admirable numbers were the Greek Bacchanale, danced by Miss Henrietta Costigan, with splendid fire and spirit, and the love solo by Miss Ruth Macdonald, both of which called for encores.

A comedy part as a red-headed belle to life by Miss Grace Fisher, who later was the genie of the lamp, and the musical comedy number was a dance by Aladdin and the bellhop.

Chorus Brought Atmosphere.

The color, variety and atmosphere of the performance was contributed by the chorus element. The production of the chorus element, which was the comedy, when they appeared early in the first act as grape juice, beer, milk and lemon pop. Milk, in the form and figure of a milk bottle, was a very clever and original idea. The chorus was dressed in a dark brown round structure. Their song and dance was well done and occasioned much enjoyment.

The wedding bells came in on And Now It's Wedding Bells, and the chorus, swaying across the stage with a bell-like motion, worked up atmosphere for the development of the plot being enacted. The wedding scene was a beautiful picture, and the chorus, with costumes designed to resemble bells.

I've a Spot in My Heart for an Artist, which was sung charmingly by the leading lady as her debut to the audience, and the chorus, which was the chorus of the artists. The artists wore ornate, white flannel trousers, flowing ties and black velvet tam-o-shanters and carried palettes. Color blended on the stage during the act which was original and attractive.

In the second act, the first chorus to appear was the slave chorus, which opened up the action with a most effective picture. The chorus, which was the chorus of the slaves, was dressed in a dark brown round structure. Their song and dance was well done and occasioned much enjoyment.
